Culture, community and identity: communications technologies and the reconfiguration of Europe. Euroculture: communication, space and time. No place like heimat: images of home(land). Spaces of Identity is a stimulating account of the complex and contradictory nature of contemporary cultural identities, and important reading for all concerned with the threads from which the pattern of our contemporary identities are being woven. David Morley is Reader in Communication Studies at Goldsmiths' College, London. Why did our Emperor get up so early in the morning? And at the greatest city gate why is he sitting there now. Upon his throne, officially, why is he wearing his crown? Because the Barbarians arrive today.
