We are looking forward to celebrating the 2011 Get-Together at William Ryan’s exciting Harold Park Hotel which is situated cnr Wigram Road and Ross Street, Glebe NSW. Many thanks to William for making his ‘pride and joy’ available for us to meet and discuss important things of a cruciverbal nature. It’s not too late to accept the invitation. See further details on p6.

We have been delighted with the number of subscription renewals for 2012 and the generous donations made by our loyal members. In order to maintain the high level of prizes for 2012 we need to take advantage of your generosity once again. Thank you for your kindness. We acknowledge all renewals and donations to date on p9 of Crossworld.

The ACC’s Puzzle set-up Dynamo Ian Williams has furnished us with a challenging array of puzzles this month. We have gems from The EmCee, Jesso, Kaelia, InGrid and zinzan and Hot and Cold make a welcome return with a Slot 6 puzzle titled A Beast of a Puzzle. The perennial favourite Betelgeuse has provided us with another excellent puzzle in Slot 7 and we have two Quizzes – one by the tireless Virgo which is called Animal Crackers and a bonus Quiz by dB titled Transmutation of Metals.

Plus we have another Clue Writing Competition adjudicated by the skilful Michael Kennedy. You will marvel at Michael’s masterly analyses of each clue submitted in the Competition. All crossword compilers can benefit from reading Michael’s comments. See p16. Thank you Michael for continuing with this VIP feature of Crossworld. For the next Clue Writing Competition Michael would like you to write a clue for the word APOSTLE (7). If you submit a clue, don’t forget to include the explanation. See p15 for further details.

Kindly note the early closing date of Friday 18 November 2011 so that we can publish our Christmas Crossworld in good time.

Best of Luck with your Melbourne Cup selection and Happy Crosswording! —Patrick

GENERAL COMMENTS:

• Many thanks for the handsome book you sent as a prize for August's slot 6. It has already been put to good use.

Denis Coates

• Thanks (ta, bless you) for the excellent (stonking, bonzer) Chambers (halls, meeting rooms) Thesaurus (lexicon, synonymy) I received (got, obtained) for winning (winsome, bewitching) slot (vent, opening) 4 last month. I promise to make better use of it than this in future (henceforward, hereinafter).

Merv Collins

• Many thanks Patrick for the beautiful certificate and cheque I received for last month's Slot 3. Such a lovely surprise – icing on the cake indeed!

Robyn Wimbush

• Many thanks for another enjoyable set of puzzles this month. I have to admit that I felt a bit like the bloke with head in oven and feet in fridge. #1 was simple – maybe too simple with only a couple needing a resort to references #2 - 4 were all straightforward with no serious venom but #5 was a doozy.

Jim Fowler

• Many thanks to the club for my prize – I will enjoy reading David Astle's book very much.

Margaret Steinberger

• Too little time; too many crosswords! Fingers crossed with my answers. Thanks for the enjoyable challenge.

Bronwyn Hull

• Thank you again CROZ . . . my solace in old age! So many COTMs . . . FLIC was one I reluctantly overturned.

Dale McManus

• I found all the puzzles enjoyable. It was very hard to pick a COTM as there were so many good clues.

Robyn Caine

• This month’s puzzles on the whole were not too difficult, and enjoyable as always.

Margaret Davis

• A trick at every turn this month. Hope I solved some of them.

Sandra May

• Thank you again CROZ . . . my salve in old age! So many COTMs . . . FLIC was one I reluctantly overturned.

Dale McManus

• I found all the puzzles enjoyable. It was very hard to pick a COTM as there were so many good clues.

Robyn Caine

• I've just returned from a 'Round the World in 80 Days' trip and finding it difficult to get my cryptic brain going again. Still I've enjoyed doing four puzzles but run out of time for any more. Hope I might have some of them right.

Hilary Cromer

• Many thanks to the club for my prize – I will enjoy reading David Astle’s book very much.

Mike Potts

• Too little time; too many crosswords! Fingers crossed with my answers. Thanks for the enjoyable challenge.

Bronwyn Hull

• Thank you for the cheque for last month’s slot win – that’s 2012 membership accounted for!

Margaret Steinberger

Across solutions are consistent with the theme. Simply remove the linking words from the “story” and work on the remaining whole words. Down clues are conventionally cryptic.

Weird and Wonderful Words, Erin McKean, Oxford, 2003

angletwitch an obsolete but charming word meaning ‘a worm used as bait in fishing’.

aspectabund an adjective meaning ‘having an expressive face’.

autoschediastic done on the spur of the moment or improvised. This word comes from a Greek word meaning ‘to act or speak off-hand’. (As luck would have it, this entry was put in at the last minute.)

batie-bummil a useless bungler. An obsolete Scottish dialect word. It is unknown whether there are more useless bunglers in Scotland than elsewhere, or—much more likely—less tolerance of them.

bloviate to speak in a pompous or overbearing way. This is a mock-Latin fancying-up of blow or boast. The word was made popular by President Warren G Harding (1865-1923).

carriwitchet a pun, a conundrum. The etymology is unknown, making the origin of the word itself a conundrum.

cockagrice an unappetizing (to modern palates) dish made of an old cock and a pig boiled and roasted together. Grice is an old word for pig.

codology an Irish word meaning, jocularly, ‘the science of leg-pulling’. Cod is an Irishism for a joke or a hoax. A hoaxer is called a codologist.

draffsack a bag of garbage, used figuratively to mean ‘a big paunch or belly, a glutton’. Draff is an old word meaning ‘dregs, swill’.

2011 GET-TOGETHER AND HAVE FUN: WONDERFUL LOCATION!!

The ACC’s Annual Get-Together will be held at William ‘Raoul’ Ryan’s smart new pub The Harold Park Hotel, cnr Wigram Road and Ross Street, Glebe NSW on Sunday 20 November 2011 commencing at 11:30am. William has allocated a comfortable and spacious upstairs dining area and he serves delicious meals at bargain rates and drinks at pub prices. It will be a lot of fun and we can discuss all manner of things cruciverbal! There will be plenty of the Club’s best known personalities in attendance. Why not come along and say ‘hello’? Pay on the day. We will have prizes to give away and there will be a ‘daffy-nitonal’ crossword and a fascinating Quiz to get your pencils into. Looking forward to meeting up again. Be there!

A BREATHTAKING STORY FROM MERV COLLINS
‘I came across this nice story whilst reading the actor, Pete Postlethwaite’s autobiography. I think our members might enjoy it. He wrote: ‘One of the remarkable things about my father was his death.... He always did the Daily Mail crossword with his morning cup of tea and on that particular morning it got to 11.30 a.m. and he had got a clue which read ‘Fade (3,4)’. He wrote ‘Die Away’ and then put his head down on the kitchen table. Mother told him to stop messing about and tried to put his pipe back in his mouth, but he’d gone. There was a strange thing about his passing, because when we looked at the crossword he’d left one space unfilled. The clue that he didn’t get was ‘Myosotis, blue flower’. The answer was ‘Forget me not’. Quite touching, I think; nice way to go for a crossworder.’
A Beast of a Puzzle
by Hot and Cold

Eleven solutions comprise one word from a well-known two word phrase. The phrase is defined but the cryptic component refers only to the element of the phrase that is not to be inserted in the grid. The remaining clues are mercifully normal.

CHEATING AT CROSSWORD SOLVING

Margaret Davis has kindly sent us a recent newspaper clipping from the Financial Times (UK) written by a senior editor Christopher Caldwell. The article is titled: The glorious anti-utilitarian nobility of crosswords. He asks the question: At what point does looking for hints in reference books and on the internet become ‘cheating’? ‘This turns out to be a complicated problem’, he says. No one believes it is OK to seek help for a crossword submitted as part of a competition, but beyond that the rules are fluid. With Scrabble you can use a dictionary to adjudicate what you have come up with but not to hunt for what you have not. He says that it is a “shallow way of looking at things” by saying that if puzzle setters used the internet to compose the puzzle then puzzle solvers can too.

He concludes: “An age in which everyone feels he can Google what he doesn’t know is an age in which the quirky gifts of crossword-doers are of permanently diminished value, and in which the glorious hobby threatens to go the way of building ships inside of bottles.”

WORD OF THE MONTH

lexicon n. 1 a dictionary, especially of Greek, Hebrew, Syriac or Arabic. 2 the vocabulary of a person, language, branch of knowledge, etc. [ORIGIN: modern Latin from Greek lexikos (biblion ‘book), neut. of lexikos, via lexias ‘word’ from legō ‘speak.’]

The Australian National Dictionary Centre was established in 1988 with the twin purposes of conducting research into Australian English and providing Oxford University Press with editorial expertise for its range of Australian dictionaries. It is jointly funded by the Australian National University and Oxford University Press Australia. WS Ramson was director of the Centre from 1988 to 1994. Bruce Moore became director in 1994. The Centre takes its name from The Australian National Dictionary: A Dictionary of Australianisms on Historical Principles, ed. WS Ramson, which was published by Oxford University Press in 1988.

Throttlebottom: This word is an American slang term meaning ‘purposeless, incompetent holder of public office’. For instance when Lyndon Johnson was elected to Vice-President (to John F Kennedy as President) Johnson is reported to have said: ‘I will not be a throttlebottom.’ The word was coined from the name of a character in an American musical comedy. The character was a certain Alexander Throttlebottom who was an American Vice-President in the Broadway show Of Thee I Sing, which opened on the great white way in 1932. The words and music were by George and Ira Gershwin and the ‘book’ of the show was by George Kaufman and Morrie Ryskind.

—from Word of the Day by Kel Richards, ABC, 2004

- Nice start to the puzzles.
  Joan Smith
- Thanks again to Noel for another enjoyable warm-up Slot 1 puzzle.
  Alan Walter
- Learnt some new words here.
  Carole Noble
- Excellent opener.
  Brian Symons
- I wasn’t sure about the political correctness of ‘negro’ but can’t think what else to put.
  Barb Ibbott
- A nice “ease-in” for this month.
  Alan Dyer

October 2-2011: Cryptic by Kaelia (Anne Simons)

In answer to a query, 23dn is an initial letter clue. TD

- Enjoyable puzzle: liked the clues for 14, 25ac & 7dn.
  Joan Smith
- Far too many blackouts in the grid. 9ac was a challenge.
  Alan Dyer
- You had some really good clues, I liked your fresh approach.
  Alan Walter
- Could I suggest that you only use that grid for non-cryptic crosswords in future? There are far too many black squares and uncrossed letters for it to be a fair cryptic puzzle.
  Carole Noble
- Some good clues here but I didn’t like the grid with its high percentage of dark squares.
  Brian Symons
- I was stuck on 9ac for a while. As a Scot I think I must roll my Rs too much – I’m sweating with effort.
  Barb Ibbott
- The clue for 25ac (CIRCUMVENT) sounded a bit contrived, and uncrossed letters for it to be a fair cryptic puzzle.
  Alan Dyer
- This month I liked the clue for BALDERDASH.
  Peter Dearie
- Nearly didn’t. As an interested opponent of 6dn SODA and 5ac ASPIC but the penny dropped in time.
  Barb Ibbott
- The phrase in 1dn and 8dn made this crossword interesting. IMPasto and SMITHEREENS have excellent clues.
  Len Colgan
- The phrases in 1dn and 8dn and the answer to 25ac in particular were good fun.
  Carole Noble
- The phrases in 1dn and 8dn made this crossword interesting. IMPasto and SMITHEREENS have excellent clues.
  Len Colgan
- How strange – ‘BRIO’ came up in slots 3 and 5. I loved 9ac, 1dn, 15dn, 17dn, but for a great laugh I opted for 20dn, HIJACK.
  Betty Siegman
- Loved TALKATHON – nearly made it my COTM. The long clues were a challenge but helped in finishing the puzzle once solved.
  Barb Ibbott
- Most enjoyable exercise with praiseworthy answers. The Z cluse grates with the delayed placement of “runs in”. Why not use “South American fox runs in animal park (5)”?
  Len Colgan

October 5-2011: Cryptic by Zinzan (Andrew Patterson)

- A toxic blend of deviousness and mischief. I’m not totally convinced of 5dn, though. Several brilliant clues with FLAVOUR being my COTM, edging out INFIELDS.
  Alan Walter
- Some clever clues (BODYSUITS, JOSTLE, NEGATIVE, ZORRO).
  Alan Dyer
- Challenging puzzle (and frustrating), favourite clues were 1, 15, 27 and 28ac and 23dn. Would appreciate an explanation for the cryptic component of BAHTS, EASY and NAIL-BITING.
  Joan Smith
- I think Zinzan’s #5 must represent the head [in the oven] as mine was sweating with effort. Zinzan’s 27ac clue is my COTM (flavour).
  Jim Fowler
- COTM has to be 1ac. As usual, Zinzan gives both the most pleasure and the most trouble.
  Jean Barbour
- Very difficult – but rewarding. AFRO gets my COTM – just ahead of FLAVOUR and USED.
  Brian Symons
- This was really tough going! I got most of the solution by intuition then tried to figure out why. Luckily the pennies dropped one at a time or I could have sustained an injury.
  Carole Noble
- Lot of difficult clever clues. I gave FLAVOUR COTM, for clever misleading IV infusion. AFRO, CHUKKA took me a while! But TAOISEACH?! Zinzan, really!
  Roy Taylor
- Not for the 1st time a Zinzan puzzle took me longer to solve than slots 1-4 combined. I’m not complaining. I enjoyed the challenge of so many great clues.
  Brian Tickle
- I think that slot 5 would have been more at home in a slot 7 position!
  Col Archibald
- A great batch this month. Thought slot 5 one of the best to appear in that spot in many years.
  Raoul
- Excellent clue for ENDOMORPH.
  Andrew Miles
- 27ac – if FLAVOUR is correct I don’t understand the ‘IV infusion’ part of the clue.
  (Excellent deception: LAV surrounded/overwhelmed by FOUR [Roman IV]. ‘Infusion’ is part of the def. TD) And I was expecting ‘loo’ rather than ‘lav’!
  Margaret Davis
- Several good and amusing Zinzan clues – hard to pick one.
  Merv Collins
- I nearly gave up but managed to find answers to all the clues eventually. 8dn – ‘among the runs’ seems to be irrelevant and unnecessary. This was a tough puzzle.
  Peter Dearie
- Bring on the taoiseachs, the drag queens and the litmus paper . . . at least one can finally decide . . . but as usual the words on which I perish will probably be the 4-letter words . . . arts or arty? ease or easy? Or neither . . . Dale McManus
- Too hard for me!
  Barb Ibbott
- A real difficult puzzle and I am disappointed I did not have more time this month to nut through the clues.
  Alan Dyer
- Slot 5 was a doozy this month, and also had my COTM – INFIELDS, with ABSEILER a close second. A number of other clever clues had me going.
  Mike Potts
- I found Zinzan’s puzzle absolutely brilliant. I picked at least 8 clues warranting COTM.
  Don Hemslay
- What a puzzle! Should have been slot 6!

Adjudicator's Comments
Thank you to all those members who submitted a solution. I apologise for the spelling error, and needless to say it did feature in the comments. This was designed as a Slot 6, with some unusual words and a difficult quote to get, especially with so few checked letters. There were very few errors in the puzzles submitted, and only two of those count as anything other than transcription or missing square errors. Two missing dots were for incorrect quotes. A special thank you to those who submitted their half-finished puzzles.

Solvers' Comments
• I enjoyed this crossword very much. I'm not sure if EULOGISE is correct, and all my references spell NONPAREIL with an 'el' ending, but if 3dn is MISSING, then it had to be NONPAREIL.
  Robyn Caine

• I don't know how you can work out how to NONPAREIL – I can only Just one comment and that is 9ac and the spelling of parodies. 'Sick as a parrot' was probably in Flintshire (county) because rather than in a football stadium. It certainly gained currency in the 'over the moon' line is a reference to excitement and energy.

Two of the best-known English football managers of recent years, who have maintained the English tradition with their engagingly entertaining way of mangling the language, are Ron Atkinson and Terry Venables. The list of quotations from them is long and includes:

• “The Spaniards have been reduced to aiming aimless balls into the box.” (Atkinson)

• “If you can’t stand the heat in the dressing room, get out of the kitchen.” (Venables)

• “If Glenn Hoddle said one word to his team at half time, it was concentration and focus.” (Atkinson)

• “I felt a lump in my throat as the ball went in.” (Venables)

The humorous magazine Private Eye picked up on these and began publishing them in its Colemanballs column. The name was taken from the sports commentator David Coleman, who could give even the managers a run for their money:

• “Nottingham have now lost six matches in a row without winning.”
(Coleman)

It was really Private Eye’s lampooning that made this phrase popular. There is an associated phrase, ‘sick as a parrot’, which was used when ‘the boys’ lost. This has a much shorter pedigree and it’s quite likely that it was invented by a writer at Private Eye rather than in a football stadium. It certainly gained currency because The Eye always printed the two phrases together in their parodies. ‘Sick as a parrot’ was probably influenced the famous Monty Python ‘Dead Parrot’ sketch, which could be quoted verbatim by many in the UK at the time and which remains one of the most popular sketches ever shown on British TV.

Well, that’s the last thirty years. The actual origin of ‘over the moon’ is much earlier and, although not widely used before the 1970s, it would have been familiar to all who grew up in Britain in the 20C.

The increased use of televised post-match interviews and hours of studio commentary during the 1970s brought many football managers before the cameras. These days such men are likely to be cultured and erudite Frenchmen or Spaniards. Before that they were usually British ex-footballers who had left schools in the English or Scottish back streets early to play football. It’s fair to say that many of them have little interest in the finer points of English grammar.

is much earlier and, although not widely used before the 1970s, it would have been familiar to all who grew up in Britain in the 20C.

Why, because the source was included, as High Diddle Diddle, in the influential 16C nursery rhyme collection, Mother Goose’s Melody; or Sonnets from the Cradle, circa 1760:

High diddle diddle/The Cat and the Fiddle/The Cow jump’d over the Moon/The little dog laugh’d to see such Craft/And the Dish ran away with the Spoon.

As with most nursery rhymes, the first appearance in print may well post-date the first use by years, centuries even – children didn’t write their rhymes down. The text of such rhymes was subject to a Chinese whispers’ effect over all of that time and, whatever the original may have been, the version passed down to us is quite probably nonsense and isn’t easily interpreted. What is clear is that the ‘over the moon’ line is a reference to excitement and energy.
That’s evidenced by one of the earliest allusions to the phrase in print – Charles Molloy’s The Coquet, or, The English Chevalier, 1718:

“Tis he! I know him now: I shall jump over the Moon for Joy!”

Quiz No 9/2011: The Ayes have it by Crowsman (Len Colgan)

Solvers' Comments:
• If I have counted correctly there are 113 letter i characters included in these answers. This is certainly a puzzle to keep your eyes concentrating. Thanks for your mind-stretching puzzle.
Alan Walter

• I say, I say! This was innovative, inviting, initially involved but not impossible. Thanks for the challenge. Try not to picture me solving it while lying around in my bikini under a bimini on Phillip Is.
Jenny Wenham

• Thinks, it is silly irritating!
Roy Taylor

• Thoroughly enjoyed this one – more please!
Anne Simons

• I found your Quiz “is” quite a challenge and, in searching, couldn’t believe there were as many words with 3 or more “is” and no other vowels. Incredible! The last word I found was IGNITABILITY.
Graeme Cole

• I’ve never run into niminy-piminy before; what a wonderful phrase. 32 stumped me for some time but once I got it, it was so obvious.
Trish McPherson

• Very enjoyable, thank you, and, surprisingly, quite tricky in parts.
Rosemary Dorrell

• This is simply brill.
Kath Harper

• Spilling, sir! Nightly vigilis filling in tricky bits till finding thrill implicit in finishing.

• A fun and challenging quiz. The ayes may have it, but after writing out the answers, my eyes have had it!
Robyn Caine

• Fortunately, finding three “eyes” in each answer was not as “fibidding” as I first thought. Thankfully, I’ve learned a few new words.

Setter’s comments: The clue that caused the most trouble was 21ac. The title “Duty Bound” was supposed to indicate that the theme was to do with taxes or duties and all appeared in the across solutions. It should have been apparent that of the several possibilities of R-A-, ROAD was an option and there is such a thing as a ROAD TAX. If you had then twigged to the “I hear”, you could have thought of other ways to spell ‘tax’ (e.g., RODE, SOD, RODE). If you looked up RODE in Chambers, all would have been revealed! As an afterthought, I could have made 25ac 25/21 and had TOBACCO ROAD as the answer to both. Various answers for 21ac included REAL, REAL, RYAL, RIAL, REAP & READ. Other errors included PROTESTS (2) for PROPERTY, MERIE & RIFE for DIME, ROMANCE (2) for TOBACCO and BARRACK (2) for PATRICK. There was one COUNSEL for COUNCIL and one misspelling of INHERITANCE. (Remember, it was a Slot 7, so it was supposed to be tricky but not unfair, I hope!)
Solvers’ comments:
• Quite a challenging puzzle. Many thanks. Joan Smith
• I was surprised by the number of words for a tax – duty, levy, impost and rates to name just a few. Carole Noble
• I was reminded of the expression “a dime a dozen” by checking under ‘dime’ in Chambers. Thank you for a well-thought-out puzzle. Tony De Gryfs
• 25ac took me on a new & unfamiliar road to Erskine Caldwell, then to his works. Denis Coates
• Thank you for this teaser – I feel you may have been too much of a challenge for me. Nevertheless, Bev, very enjoyable and win or lose, I gave it my best shot. Roy Wilson
• Thank you for the entertainment even if it’s not correct. Joan Smith
• Great themed puzzle, hopefully solved correctly. Ann Jermy
• Thanks, Bev – 21ac has completely defeated me! Andrew Miles
• Bev, thanks for this mind-bender. Quite a taxing puzzle to solve! It took ages to discover ‘rode’ in Chambers esp. of a woodcock to perform a regular evening flight. “Rode” became ROAD in 21ac. (Well spotted, Alan!) Alan Walter
• A nice challenge. Tony Dobele
• What a puzzle! I’m nervous about 21ac & have spent many hours in it & 17dn. Devilish! Enjoyed every minute of it. Many thanks for your input. Robyn Wimbush
• Thank you for your excellent puzzle. I cannot understand 21ac ROAD if indeed that is correct. Spring has arrived in the West & everything looks & smells lovely. Dor Jones
• Hope you get a good “return” on your puzzle! Peter Dearie
• I assume PATRICK is a President somewhere. (He’s OUR President!) Graeme Cole
• It took ages to twig that 17dn PATRICK referred to our president! Robyn Caine
• Thanks, Bev. A novel idea for a theme. Pat Garner
• I found this puzzle really difficult but the clues were excellent. Gabrielle Leeds
• An entertaining but not too ‘taxing’ puzzle. Jenny Wenham
• Thanks for the challenge. Brian Symons & Trish McPherson
• But who was the president named Patrick? Bang head against wall! Ours! Len Colgan

• Great quiz! Amazing that you can actually make reasonable phrases of the letters. Tony De Gryfs
• Thanks for another of your clever quizzes. This must have taken quite a while to research and you did well to match almost all the alphabet to rivers of the world. Bev Cockburn
• I couldn’t verify Afton, but all the others I could. Marian Procter
• Thank you for providing such a different and, to me, a testing quiz. I looked through the 22 clues to see if anything popped out and found some answers this way and tried to work out the rest. However, by not reading carefully the instructions I did not note that the answers were in alphabetical order and not only from 1 – 22 but within each puzzle. My wife actually noticed this as I asked her if she could do 1 AVON+? NOFTA – 24 possibilities starting with A! Now the answers became a little easier, but I had spent ages on them. Graeme Cole
• I had great fun doing this quiz. I’m not too sure about Yarrow, and only got Afton because of the old song. Yvonne McKayland
• I generally don’t complete quizzes and with this one I was stuck on ANFOT. One day I was looking through a song book (300 songs) my son had on his piano and found Flow Gently Sweet Afton – I couldn’t believe it! Veniece Lobsey Setter’s Comments: Yes, it’s a lovely song; we learnt it in First year (English village school). Probably not sung here though: Flow Gently Sweet Afton among thy green braes, Flow gently; I’ll sing thee a song in thy praise: My Mary’s asleep by Flow Gently Sweet Afton – Our dream... 48 entries for this quiz. Is this a record? Most got full marks. There were very few blank spaces. Errors included a Blank for BRISBANE. Yes, it is a river as well as a city, and HOUNDS for HUDSON. A couple had OREGAN for ORANGE. Unfortunately, although the state of Oregon has 8 important rivers, none are named after it. Astonishing! I tried to get a fair few Aussie rivers in, then take off round the globe. Everyone seemed to like puzzling it out and there were many positive comments.

is derived from STEAM engine – engine ROOM, as indicated by the use of 'link', i.e. ENGINE links the words STEAM and ROOM. It’s quite an ingenious idea, although I’m not convinced by the execution. ‘Link’ by itself following the two terms does not provide enough information to the solver about what needs to be done.

Nea’s cheering about Google ***

This is an anagram as indicated by ABOUT. Nothing wrong with the mechanics but the definition falls into the category of indirect definitions. All it would need is a ‘perhaps, for one, etc.’ to be completely without fault.

Research Engineer about and about, about gone for Google plus ***

Take RE and ER (about about) from RESEARCH ENGINEER and you are left with the answer. This clue had so much potential. Who would have thought that a term like this could be hidden? While the indicators and definition are accurate enough its the surface reading that lets this clue down. Too many abouts! A containment indicator may have been the way to go. Maybe something like: Research Engineer holds the answer, or maybe just Google. (No rating)

Scrutinize driver’s program ***

Search + Engine. This excellent clue makes light of the difficulties associated with clueing what appears to be a difficult term. With clever but gettable synonyms the compiler has managed to convey a simple story in three words that make complete sense.

Terrier, typically, makes turn with bird trap in sight ***

ARC (turn) + HEN (bird) + GIN (trap) inside SEE (sight). The secondary indicators for this clue have been expertly woven together to paint a picture of a hunting dog doing what it does best. ARC for TURN is legitimate and is listed as a verb in Chambers. Even so, it does make the clue more challenging given TURN can also be read as an indicator. The main issue here is the definition. You won’t find ‘Terrier, typically’ under SEARCH ENGINE, in any dictionary or thesaurus. The use of ‘typically’ is to inform the solver that the definition is ‘representative of’ and not a straight synonym. While this may be acceptable and I have seen these used before, its vital that the definition is ‘totally’ representative of the answer. In this case I am not convinced that a search engine is a perfect representation of a terrier, although I understand the gist. I’ll be interested to hear what others may think.

The type of program to stir up Chinese anger ****

I guess it’s not surprising that this clever anagram, as well as the indicator, appears yet again. However, what separates this simple clue from the others is the accurate definition while still maintaining a perfectly sensible surface reading. Perhaps it doesn’t carry the impact of ‘Google’, but the compiler has provided a fairer definition.

*Used for ‘internet chase’ said to tease out gin cocktail ½

I’ll admit it took me a little while to unlock the code to this clue. That’s because there’s a devious combination of double duty and tough indicators. Firstly, it is an anagram of INTERNET CHASE minus two ‘Ts’ (as indicated by ‘said to tease out’). But where’s the G to make search engine? It’s indicated by GIN (G IN). ‘Cocktail’ is the anagram indicator. The definition is ‘used for internet chase’, meaning ‘internet chase’ is doing two jobs. While the definition is excellent, I think the indicator ‘g in’ is less than fair. It would take something special to recognise the compiler’s direction here. I don’t quite understand the surface reading but that could just be me.

What do they do when a suspicious locomotive goes through customs? – Find a source of information!

They ‘search engine’! A clever cryptically rendered clue with accurate indicators and definition. A perfectly solvable clue that is also entertaining.

With no hint of mercy German Chinese torture program is used for locating information ***

An anagram of ‘german chinese’ minus ‘m’ (hint of mercy). One of the best clues as far as surface reading is concerned, although I am a little perturbed about what type of torture may have been devised. The definition is a direct one so it passes that test too. However, it probably needs a pronoun like ‘this program....’ or some way of dropping the ‘is’ for the definition to be totally seamless. Still, a fine original effort!
