Thomas Hardy was born in Higher Bockhampton, Dorset, England on June 2, 1840, the eldest son of Thomas Hardy and Jemima Hand Hardy. His father was a stonemason and builder; his mother passed on her love of reading and books to her son. Hardy had somewhat of an isolated life on the open fields of the region. He grew up living and examining rural life, which figures prominently in many of his novels. His education was interrupted by his work as an architect. The English author Thomas Hardy set all of his major novels in the south and southwest of England. He named the area “Wessex” after the medieval Anglo-Saxon kingdom that existed in this part of that country prior to the unification of England by Æþelstan. Although the places that appear in his novels actually exist, in many cases he gave the place a fictional name. For example, Hardy’s home town of Dorchester is called Casterbridge in his books, notably in The Mayor of Casterbridge. In an 1895
