CODESRIA is the Council for the Development of Social Science Research in Africa head-quartered in Dakar, Senegal. It is an independent organisation whose principal objectives are facilitating research, promoting research-based publishing and creating multiple forums geared towards the exchange of views and information among African researchers. It challenges the fragmentation of research through the creation of thematic research networks that cut across linguistic and regional boundaries.

The Libyan National Army (LNA) launched a surprise attack on ISIS hideouts in the Haruj mountain chain in southern Libya.

On June 9, Libyan sources released a video showing a Turkish Bayraktar TB2 unnamed combat aerial vehicle (UCAV) flying west.

Clashes between the Libyan National Army (LNA) and Government of National Accord (GNA) forces continue around the Tripoli Airport.

The National Archives is the largest archive in the United Kingdom, but there are many other, smaller archives that may have records to help with your research. Some archives are created by official bodies such as governments, businesses or professional organisations. Others are private collections. The books in a library are often secondary sources of information, whereas the records in an archive are primary sources. Archives provide first-hand information or evidence relating to historical events or figures. Library books are arranged by subject and author, whereas information in archives is arranged according to the person or organisation that created it.
