Where Are We Going? Gauguin, Paul. Primary Category: Visual Arts / Painting/Drawing. The piece should be viewed as a text from right to left—a suggestion imparted by the artist's own letters—with the various figures representative of questions relating to human existence. In this light, the babe at the far right signifies newborn life. The figure of questionable sex whose back is turned to the viewer and who appears to inspect his or her underarm could be understood as the beginning of an individual's realization of gender. The apple-picking male and the girl to his left who sits eating an apple reenact the fable of Adam and Eve and the quest for knowledge.
