Spring Awakening is presented through special arrangement with Music Theatre International (MTI). All authorized performance materials are also supplied by MTI.

421 West 54th Street, New York, NY 10019. Phone: 212-541-4684, Fax: 212-397-4684. www.MTIShows.com

Place: a provincial German town.
Time: 1891.
There will be one 10-minute intermission.
Strobe lights will be used in this performance.

Spring Awakening was written by Steven Karam and directed by James Vásquez.
Frank Wedekind’s subtitle for his original, still shocking play of 1891 was “A Children’s Tragedy.” At first it was banned because of its depiction of taboo subjects such as abuse, incest, masturbation, teen suicide, and more. It exposed the culture of oppression and repression adolescents had to suffer. It’s a wonder any of them survive their childhood. But, of course, on another level none of us survive our childhood.

That to me is the real Children’s Tragedy. We all become adults.

The children of Spring Awakening just want to be heard, to have their questions answered. They are curious, not just about the world around them, but their own changing bodies. But no one will talk to them or listen to them. Even the parents who are willing can’t hear their children correctly. As one of the songs says, all any one hears back and forth is “Blah blah blah blah blah blah.”

The beauty of the musical is that the children finally have a voice through Duncan Sheik’s powerful and haunting music. They are able to express, if only in their fantasies, their longing, their frustration, and their dreams. If the adults in their lives could hear them, perhaps there would be less tragedy.

One of the pleasures of working on Spring Awakening has been that many of the cast and crew came in knowing and loving the music. My collaborators Mark Elliott and Julia Neary have commented often how we are being taught by them. I invite you now to “listen to what’s in the heart of a child. A song so big in one so small.”

~ Damon Kiely

Imagine a young, blonde girl with pigtails yodeling on top of a picturesque mountain. Now, flush that thought down the toilet, because in no way does this image have anything to do with how people lived in 1890s Germany.

When Frank Wedekind finished his first play, Frühlings Erwachen (Spring Awakening), around Easter of 1891, the world was teeming with the liberal energy of industrialism, which ushered in modernity. At the same time the harsh, Prussian ideals of the recently formed German Empire conflicted with these liberal ideals as the imperial powers promoted a traditional value system restricting sexuality and imposing gender barriers and other prohibitions. Wedekind’s play, a drama centered on sexuality, was scandalous. The authorities closed it almost immediately, and it took years to be staged.

Then, Spring Awakening took its place in the canon of world drama. Just over a century later Steven Sater made it into an American rock musical with the same name. Many of the play’s original elements were cut or changed, but its theme of taboo sexuality remains intact. And, like the original play, the musical shocked audiences. Instead of the standard style from which most American musical theatre is generated, Spring Awakening stirred audiences with its utilization of the rock tradition.

A rock musical about teenage sexuality in 1890s Germany seems bizarre, because it is. The clash of liberal-minded industrialism and Prussian traditionalism, as different as the song and scene worlds in the musical, reveals a past that cannot be characterized. The musical accurately reflects the history it portrays: an amalgamation of attributes that do not seem like they could exist simultaneously, yet somehow still do.

Mission Statement

The Theatre School at DePaul University educates, trains, and inspires students of theatre in a conservatory setting that is rigorous, disciplined, culturally diverse and that strives for the highest level of professional skill and artistry.

A commitment to diversity and equality in education is central to our mission. As an integral part of the training, The Theatre School produces public programs and performances from a wide repertoire of classic, contemporary and original plays that challenge, entertain, and stimulate the imagination. We seek to enhance the intellectual and cultural life of our university community, our city and the profession. For admissions information, telephone (773) 325-7999 or 1-800-4-DEPAUL.

Chicago Playworks for Families and Young Audiences

Chicago Playworks offers a live theatre experience to students, teachers and parents in the Chicago metropolitan area. It is our mission to provide theatre for children that reflects their experiences in a contemporary, multi-ethnic, urban environment.

Founded as the Goodman Children’s Theatre in 1925, Chicago Playworks is the city’s oldest continuously operating children’s theatre. It has been the first theatre experience for audiences of Chicago’s young people for more than seven decades and was one of the first major theatres for children in the United States. In 1997 and again in 2003, Chicago Playworks was honored by the Illinois Theatre Association with the Children’s Theatre Division Award, for its outstanding long-term contribution to children’s theatre. In 1980, Chicago Playworks was awarded the prestigious Sara Spencer Award by the Children’s Theatre Association of America (now the American Alliance for Theatre and Education).

Chicago Playworks is a vital aspect of the training at The Theatre School at DePaul University. Students gain pre-professional experience in an extended run before a most demanding and appreciative audience. Chicago Playworks presents three unique productions to more than 35,000 young people each season and has entertained more than 1 million schoolchildren and families since 1925.

The Theatre School Showcase

Contemporary Plays and Classics

Presenting diverse and exciting productions, The Theatre School Showcase blends imagination and cultural impact with three plays, and rounds-out the season with a fourth production featuring the graduating MFA in Acting candidates. The Theatre School Showcase offers a unique opportunity to see tomorrow’s industry leaders today, by introducing the raw creativity and dedicated collaborations of artists at the beginning of their careers. Their work is powerful, imaginative, and new.

Merle Reskin Theatre

Celebrating a century of performances this season, the Merle Reskin Theatre, built as the Blackstone Theatre in 1910, was designed by Chicago architects Marshall & Fox. The stone façade and mansard roof of the Beaux-Arts style building have been modified only slightly over the years. The interior finish of French walnut and gold was designed by Plamondon & Tetz to give the appearance of a European opera house. Prior to DePaul’s purchase of the theatre in 1988, it had been home to vaudeville, the Federal Theatre Project and the touring productions of the Shubert Organization. The Theatre School brings an audience of more than 35,000 people to the theatre each season.

This PDF contains the full English text of The Lulu Plays by Frank Wedekind as well as his play Spring Awakening. The latter play is most known today because of its use as the basis for the musical with book and lyrics by Steven Sater and music by Duncan Sheik. The Lulu Plays trilogy includes the plays Earth Spirit and Pandora’s Box which are the basis of the 1929 silent film Pandora’s Box starring Louise Brooks and directed by G.W. Pabst. The introduction (in this PDF) is by Samuel A. Eliot, Jr. and was written in 1923, presumably the year this book was published in the UK. The musical was based on the controversial German expressionist play The Awakening of Spring, written by Frank Wedekind. Sheik wrote the music and lyrics to the 2013 musical adaptation of American Psycho, which opened at the Almeida Theatre in London, and was later staged on Broadway in 2016. That same year, Sheik wrote the music for the musical adaptation of the novel Because of Winn-Dixie, which opened at the Arkansas Repertory Theatre. Dixie was a collaboration with director John Tartaglia and Nell Benjamin, who wrote the book and lyrics.
