Cortés was the son of Martín Cortés de Monroy and of Doña Catalina Pizarro Altamirano—names of ancient lineage. They had little wealth, but much honour, according to Cortés's secretary, Francisco López de Gómara, who tells how, at age 14, the young Hernán was sent to study at Salamanca, in west-central Spain, because he was very intelligent and clever in everything he did. Experience of the rough-and-tumble of New World politics advised Cortés to move fast, before Velázquez changed his mind. His sense of the dramatic, his long experience as an administrator, the knowledge gained from so many failed expeditions, above all his ability as a speaker gathered to him six ships and 300 men, all in less than a month.
