In a constitutional monarchy the personality of the monarch, however striking it may be; is of less importance in the national history than in days and realms in which the Crown directly controls national policy. Role of the Railway During those twenty years the Industrial Revolution was carried to completion by the huge development of steam traffic both by land and by water. Passenger traffic by rail was in effect inaugurated by the opening of the Manchester and Liverpool railway in 1830; in 1850 all the main railway lines were at work. Early Victorian Paintings. During the early years of Queen Victoria’s reign rapid industrial development resulting in many social and political changes was seen which made the United Kingdom very powerful and one of the most advanced nations in the world. The early paintings were dominated by the theories of the first president of the Royal Academy of Arts, Joshua Reynolds. The Italian Renaissance painter, Raphael’s work had the great impact on his mind and he believed that it is the artist who makes the subject of his work look noble and idealized to a great extent.
